

Mama's Golden Boy

By Melina Alagić

(short synopsis)

In the transition society of post-war Sarajevo juvenile delinquency is a part of daily life. . . The world of fourteen-year-old Damir is irreversibly changed in a day. A desperate need to fit in with a new group makes him in a witness and accomplice to a brutal murder. Because of his troublesome past, lack of parental understanding, family issues and lack of friends, Damir sees running away as the only escape from the newly arisen situation. . .

LOGLINE

Search for a brighter future in a world where "mama's golden boys" grow up to become coldblooded killers...

TAGLINE

What hope remains when childhood ceases to be innocent?